Why Life Insurance ?

Life insurance is a financial protection plan for events involving human life, such as death, disability, accident, retirement, and so on.

Natural and unintentional causes of mortality and disability pose a threat to human existence. When a human life is lost or a person is permanently or temporarily incapacitated, the household loses revenue.

Though human life cannot be valued, a monetary amount might be calculated based on future income losses. As a result, the Sum Assured is a 'benefit' in life insurance.

Person insurance policies pay out a certain sum of money if the life insured dies or becomes handicapped due to an accident during the policy's term.

"It's our job to ask if you have life Insurance, don't make it your family's job to ask if you had any."

Why Health Insurance ?

Nobody expects to get sick or injured, yet serious sickness can strike at any time. Treatment costs might put a strain on the funds you've built up over time. This implies you may have to choose between providing a high-quality education for your child and defaulting on your mortgage payments.

Health insurance is a living benefit that pays out if you have a financial emergency. All of your savings might be wiped away by a single ailment.

One ailment may wipe away all of your money for your children's education, marriage, home ownership, and even retirement.

You don't want your family's goals to be crushed because of a sickness, especially when you might have financially safeguarded yourself. When you are young and healthy, it is advantageous to have health insurance. Not only do your premiums rise as you become older, but you also risk being denied health coverage by the insurance company.

Are You Investing Properly ?

Gone are the days when individuals use to just rely on their money for future security. Savings may not be enough to provide financial security in today's environment.

It's also possible that money sitting in your savings account or locker isn't serving the goal. This is due to two factors: first, the idle cash in your bank account is an opportunity cost since it cannot make more money, and second, it lacks the ability to combat inflation.

It is evident from the preceding truth that simply producing money and keeping it inactive is insufficient. It would be beneficial if you put your money to work for you.

Investing is the process of allocating funds to various asset classes with the goal of capital growth and higher long-term returns.

GrowwCap financial advisory gives you the best plans for short term as well as long term growth range options for your continual growth.

More Than A Regular Agent

Agents that sell insurance fail to present consumers with comprehensive coverage alternatives. They withhold critical policy-related information from susceptible persons, whether consciously or inadvertently. On various times, it has been revealed that these agents market unrelated plans only for their own advantage and fee, rather than prioritising the customer's needs.

Because of the insurance industry's opacity, a large portion of the money saved goes to fattening the agent's wallet. Customers are hesitant to acquire insurance through brokers because of these issues.

GrowwCap on the other hand operate on an online platform with complete transparency for the policy details and benefits, with our clients in mind.
